Athletes must have an eligible Impairment for the sport of Wheelchair Basketball and player meets the IWBF minimum impairment criteria, listed in the official IWBF players' classification master list and be deemed eligible by the IWBF classification rules to be considered for selection to the National Team.

The WBC selection committee has the final authority on deciding whether an athlete should be included for final consideration.

6. Criteria for Selection

The primary criteria for selecting athletes to camps and National Teams is led by the Next Gen Player Development Manager and is outlined below.

- Use WBC's Gold Medal Profile to evaluate the athlete's position on the depth chart,
- Medical/Physical status at the time of selection and projected availability,
- Factors related to team cohesion and dynamics, including acceptance and execution of presented roles,
- Based on confirmed classification, the athlete can contribute within proposed line-ups,
- Special line-up combinations, and
- Substitution for players in the primary line-ups are met.

Additional criteria for consideration:

- Commitment to WBC's National Team High Performance Values,
- The ability of the athlete to travel independently to National Team camps/competitions.
- Commitment to the program and to training as demonstrated through attendance at training, camps and competition throughout the year
- Commitment to regular and prompt communication as requested with WBC and program team staff
- Consistent reporting and submission of training reports as required in the athlete's monitoring system.
- Ability to fit the overall team style of play (speed, full-court press, back-picking, high tempo defense, fast breaking)

- Evaluation during the year in competitive events at an elite level.

NB: Being nominated for a carding does not guarantee that an athlete will be selected to the National Team to represent Canada at any major competition (Paralympics, World Championship, Qualification Tournament).

Using these criteria, the WBC Selection Committee will choose a team to represent Canada that provides a cohesive environment, an opportunity for emerging athletes and positions Canada to challenge for the podium.

7. WBC athlete program standards

National Team athletes' post-selection criteria
